

Climate Change: The Destruction of This Earth
by Farah Chen

In this beautiful world we live in
We have committed quite the sin
To cause this earth
That has diverse wildlife that's worth
To shrivel up in heat
All because of human's feats

Beauty shrouds the Earth with grace
Glossy leaves and delicate flowers come a-plenty in this place.
Everything is beautiful, that is true
From the loudest of growls to the quietest of coos.
But the dark truth that we humans have made
Causes this earth to slowly fade.

Because of pollution and our carelessness to our land
Our Earth can no longer balance the climate or withstand
The fossil fuels we release daily
So different animals may no longer play gaily.
But might it not be too late
We can predict and prevent our fate.
